

TEACHING UNITS

The Faculty of Medicine is located on the Health Campus of the University of Lleida. It is divided into two teaching units, where teaching and scientific activities take place.

The teaching unit of the University Hospital Santa María (HUSM)

The teaching unit of the University Hospital Arnau de Vilanova (HUAV).

Currently, the FM has modern spaces adapted to the learning model established by the European Higher Education Area (EHEA).

These spaces are equipped with the latest generation of teaching and research equipment and include the Health Campus Library, study rooms, computer rooms, a dissection room, practice and research laboratories, medical skills classrooms, and facilities for patient simulation in critical situations. This organizational system optimizes the professor-student relationship with better practical learning and encourages more human capital involvement in teaching, research, and healthcare tasks to ensure better teaching quality.

The teaching unit of the University Hospital Santa María (HUSM)

The central headquarters of the Faculty of Medicine is located within the University Hospital of Santa María, where, in addition to the administrative units and the Dean's Office, the first courses of the Medicine degree and the degrees of Biomedical Sciences and Human Nutrition and Dietetics are taught. Additionally, this space houses the Health Sciences Campus library, the study room, the IT service, computer rooms, practice laboratories, the dissection room, the osteotheque, and the Main Auditorium.

Teaching Unit HUAV

In the teaching unit of the University Hospital Arnau de Vilanova (HUAV), the upper courses of the Medicine and Biomedical Sciences degrees are taught. This unit was inaugurated in 2008 and is designed with spaces to carry out the teaching methodology derived from the Bologna Plan, a study room, three computer rooms, the simulation room, and the clinical skills room, as well as a significant number of seminar rooms for small group work.
